

I think allowing mobile phone usage on passenger aircraft is a bad idea. The close quarters, the other-than-comfortable surroundings, the already present noise from babies, people talking to seat neighbors/companions, the attendant, etc all conspire to make the actual flight a somewhat stressful environment as it is. Not to mention the anxiety with flying that is more noticeable since 9/11. Adding mobile phones into the mix would clearly disrupt the already tenuous nature of flying.